

Inventory Checklist For renters + homeowners

Be prepared

No one likes to think about loss, especially about the loss of one's belongings. Having a plan in place can make things a lot easier if something does happen. One way to prepare yourself is to keep track of your belongings with our inventory checklist. So, if something happens, you know what you need to replace.

How to create your inventory checklist

First, know what your tenant insurance covers (our awesome property insurance specialists can help you with that.) Many renters / homeowners have replacement cost insurance, which will replace belongings that are stolen or damaged for similar items as new. If this is the case, simply keep track of what you own and the cost to replace it as new. If you don't have replacement cost insurance, make sure to list the current cash value of your items.

Once you've filled in the checklist, keep it in a safe place (keeping a digital copy is a very good idea!). And don't forget to take a few minutes every now and then to update your list — like after a big shopping spree or the holidays. If the cost to replace your belongings is more than what your insurance covers, you may want to increase your coverage.

Special items + insurance limits

Check with your property insurance specialist for any limits to your insurance around items like jewellery, furs, collections, silverware, etc. They can help set you up with proper insurance coverage for these special items.
